HOW PARENTS AND CAREGIVERS CAN RESOLVE CONCERNS

Parents and caregivers are an important influence on student life and learning. So it's important we all work together to promote open and positive communication and ensure every student is treated fairly. Every effort is made to address concerns and resolve issues as quickly as possible. Use this guide to help you address your concerns and resolve issues.

Step 1 - Identify The Concern

- Classroom or subject issue
- Yard issue
- Student behaviour
- School policies
- Reporting student learning
- Another school related issue

Step 2 - Decide Who You Need to Speak with

Seek out the staff member who knows most about the situation. Your students' Home Group Teacher is a good first point of contact. Talk to Subject teachers or Faculty coordinators if it's related to a specific subject or class. Your student's Year Level Managers can also help and Counsellors are available for individual student and parent consultation.

The Career & Transition Coordinator is only too happy to help on matters related to external and / or Vocational programs.

Step 3 - Organise to meet or talk

Arrange a time to meet or talk to the staff member/s concerned by contacting the Front Office, placing a note in the student diary or emailing the school website or the teacher.

The best time to contact staff is before 8.30am or after 3.20pm.

We understand your concern deserves time and the gathering of accurate and all necessary information to be resolved. It's always best if you are calm and honest in your approach. You may also bring a support person to your meeting.

Step 6 - District Education Office

If the issue cannot be resolved at a school level you may contact the District Education Office. However the District Office will need to be sure that attempts have been made to resolve the issue using any or all over our steps listed.

Some points to consider

While our front office staff answer the phone and endeavor to pass messages on as soon as possible, it's important to remember they do not have a role in managing student behaviour.

As many students own mobile phones, often they phone home expecting parent support to immediately resolve an issue. It's always best to ring to arrange a mutually convenient time to meet with the appropriate staff member.

Please don't approach other students in an effort to directly to resolve your concerns.

If you need to meet with your student, please contact the Student Services Office.

Issues are best resolved with discussion only between the people who need to know. Your own, and your student's information should be kept as confidential as is appropriate.
